Extending the Time

INTEREST and attendance at the Costume Show. maugre the weather, have been great and increasing. So great have they been and so rapidly have they increased, that the obvious desirability of extending the time beyond the date first set for its closing amounts to a public demand.

We therefore announce that two days more will be given,-to-day and to-morrow. No extension can be made beyond Friday evening.

Two A Handkerchief shipments of Incident Women's Handkerchiefs that have reached us this week, tread on the heels of some stocks of similar character, already here. The new always crowds out the old, and the latter must give room quickly in this case.

You will find them on a prominent table on the main aisle this morning, and you will wonder that we could call them "old." They are not, except as judged by arrivals of yesterday. Fresh and clean and pure linen. At these reductions, they'll not stay long.

Piled high A Sale of in the ware-Fine Huck Towels rooms of a noted manufacturer of Ireland was this enormous lot of fine, pure linen towels. Our linen chief came along and made a cash offer-small, almost absurdly so-which was finally accepted. Reluctantly, perhaps, but the goods are here. Now for one of the best offerings we've ever made. A strong statement, but none too strong as you'll admit when you see these sturdy, generous-sized,

The "oldest The Literature story in the of 3200 Years world" is believed to be that which was put on papyrus by one Annana, an Egyptian scribe, thirteen centuries before Christ. It is good reading to-day.

Fancy, if you can, the immense field of literature in all languages, between this story and Rudyard Kipling's "Recessional." No one mind can master it, no one student can do much more than skim superficially over that part of it which is in his own tongue.

The only way of getting a good grasp of this colossal knowledge is to read a carefully prepared summary. It is this summary that is given in the INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY OF FAMOUS LITERA-TURE, and even the summary requires twenty large volumes.

The features of the work that will strike you most forcibly and favorably are these: First, the work is arranged as nearly chronologically as possible. The time of the writings is impressed on you unconsciously but unerringly. Second, very generous selections are given, -as often as possible whole stories, -instead of a page or two, -and always some scene or chapter that is complete in itself.

It is a work that is fascinatingly interesting for its own sake.

The work is sold through the Wanamaker Literature Club on small monthly payments, and at half the publisher's price. Send for sample sheets and full information. The Book Store, Ninth street. Seven
